The whole amount of the Intercolonial Railway loan was bearing interest, and was a deposit in the bank. The Minister of Finance paid a compliment to his predecessor Bir John Rose, for the way in which he had managed the literactionful fands. The expenditare for Civil Service last year was $620,-340. In his statement with respect to commerce, it appears that there are only seven countries in the word that buy more goods in England than Canada, whilst the latter buy three times as much per head as Americans. But that is not cionsly consented to take of all; for, if we believe, Sir F. Hincks, duties imposed last session. Canada in proportion to her popula-tion takes more English goods than speech, closely critized the statement of the any other people in the world. He was very hopeful about the debt of the Dominion. It is highly satisfactory, however, to observe that the Dominion finances are improving. Late interesting European News ATHE ARMY BILL IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Lospon, March 17—Disraeli opened the debate on army organization. He insisted that the abolition of the purchase system was a paltry measure to propose, where a great enedy for inefficiency was demanded. The e nedy for inefficiency was demanded. The proper course to pursue would be to let the bill before the House go to the working committee for improvement. The purchase question had a financial phase, and he feared that eight millions sterling would be insufficient to indemnify the loss by its abolition. Gladstone expressed his belief that the bill was satisfactory to the three branches of the service, and he opposed its reference to a committee.

The second reading of the bill was carried.

In the House of Commons on March 10th. after routine and the transaction of some un-important business, Sir Francis Hincks made his budget speech in moving the House into Committee of Ways and Means. He spoke for an hour and a quarter. The present of eleventh as last year, in the list of countries trading with Eugland, while the Dominion took, in proportion to its population, more goods from England than any other in the world, and three times as much as the Americans. From his estimates of revenue $1,892,657 for the present year, subject to a deduction for "anything Parliament might vote for the present year." Turning to next year be estimated the expenditure at $16,-393,808; and discussing ways and means he anticipated a revenue of $16,610,000. With due allowances for suplementary estimates he looked for a surplus of three hundred thousand dollars. But not withstanding this prospect he warned members not to expect any large reduction of taxation. He gracionsly consented to take off the 5 per cen-

As a second with the light inst, at 11 october A. H. Appellants must ferring to the Intercolonial Rankway and the Canal Commission, he said the North-West Expenditure would be the most profitable of any, and yet it was of a lavish description. He urged the necessity of keeping expenditure down as much as possible, and contended that the Intercolonial and Maritime Provinces Railways should be given up by the Govern-ment. He concluded by moving: 14 That the Speaker do not leave the chair, but that it be resolved that this House regress the continuous and rapid increase of the ordinary expenses of the Government as excessive and uncalled for, and believes that unless more strict economy be observed in the general outlay of the country, great exils will speedily follow." Hon. Mr. Tilley took a more hopeful view faffairs, and claimed a surplus of over million a year since Contederation, making a total of four millions. He endeavored to just ify the yearly increase of expenditure on the ground that it was for the general good of the country. He claimed that the Govern-ment had saved fifty or sixty thousand dollars in printing and by establishing a stationery department.

Mr. Carteright maintained that the Hon.

Minister of Customs had not met the arguments of Sir A. T. Galt. About twelve millions had been raised by the Government live and Onwar millions had been raised by the Government. payable at call, and in a season of adversity this course would lead to serious financial embarrassment. He seconded the motion of Sir A T. Galt, considering that in view of the burden imposed by the union of the North-West and British Columbia great economy was needed. Sir George Cartier complimented Sir A. T. Sir George Cartier complimented Sir A. T. Galt on his able address, but condemned his motion as untimely and illogical, and which he hoped the House would vote down. The Government had a surplus of two millions, and if they asked an appropriation for public works it was for the House to give it to them. Sir A. T. Galt replied to the arguments against the motion.

Mr. Oliver criticized and condemned the financial policy of the Government in an able address.

Sir F. Hincks replied to Sir A. T. Galt, and taunted him with having urged a policy in 1866 similar to that he now opposed. He adverted to the silence of hon. Mr. Helton, when that gentleman rose, and in a few brief but cutting remarks shewed the weakness of the financial statement.

Sir F. Hincks said he was not certain that negotiations were going on at Washington re-

After mittered in praise of the deliverance of the del piece of each to every one at table, who say gether. He then takes some bitter herbs (or what represents them) and after a blessing gives some to each one at table, who repeat the same blessing. He then breaks the under-most cake and then eats it with some of the herbs different from the first. This is done in bonor of an eminent Hebrew teacher named Hillel. After sup-per, the Master of the House takes half of the middle cake that was laid by and gives every one a piece of it. Then he fills the cup with wire, and mys the Grace after Meat. In saying the grace he repeats one part of the cereing the grace he repeats one part of the ceremonial, and the others respond to it. The fourth cup of wine is then filled, and after the filled (or Halleluj-h) is said it is drank leaning, and then a grace is said. The ceremony being thus completed, nothing is eaten during the remainder of the night, except water, tea, or codee. Thus do millions of Hebrews at this season meet to commemorate one of the most plerious episodes of history,—one of the grandest revelations of the Eternal. The quotation from their ceremonial: "Lo! this the bread of affliction which our ancestors the in Carne. te in Egypt-At present we celebrate it here Next year we hope to celebrate it in Israel. This year (as) servants-next year (as) free nea," etc., expresses so simply, and re so sublimety, the aspirations and ation and enthusiasm. If there be any the in ceremonial, it is in keeping alive the of political connection, it has bound by indissible ties the Jewish people in one common fraterity, far more effectually, than a mere common origin could have done. The Hebrew teligion symbolizes a nationality as no other lighter has done. The theoretic principle is the bond of union, as theocetatic government was their polity. It is singular how the lady have refused to cultivate the lands of the heathern! It is singular how, through the conscription in Europe, the Hebrew army. The deceased was one of two brothers, who have long been well known to readers, by their many works of a popular from Australia had been eagerly looked for, and instructive character. He was born in but his engagement, far the short period of and instructive character. He was born in Scotland, in 1802, and commenced his business life at a very early age as a bookseller in Edinburgh. In 1824, he published his first work, 'Traditions of Edinburgh,' dedicated to Sir Walter Scott. The undertaking was soon followed by another publication of a truly mational character. In 1832, appeared the Edinburgh Journal, designed to supply a want then felt for a cheap literary paper, and it soon became popular. Then followed the famous "Information for the People," and subsequently a "Cyclopædia of English Literature"—very popular works. To him has been attributed the compilation, if not the authorship, of "Vestiges of Creation, the forcrunner of that class of writings which how the Passover is kept. A table is laid as > Touring .- We (Law Times) very recently called attention to the touting which disgraces our profession. It is bad enough when we find it prevailing outside our courts of justice: but it is a miserable refletion that prisoners in custody are besieged by so-called lawyers, who are willing to "do the cases" for next to nothing. Whenever a prisoner has a genuine defence, he may safely be left to his own resources for obtaining proper legal as istance, sonrces for obtaining proper legal assistance, and we consider, therefore, that it is very undesirable that practitioners should have any communication with prisoners in castody, unless at their express request. We are extremely glad to see that Mr. Ellison, one of the magistrates at Lambeth, has made an or-der that no professional man shall be admitted to see a prisoner without an order of the sitting magistrate. This is all that can be done, for an appeal on our part to the class of attorneys engaged in the practice thus con-demned would be utterly useless.

Poisonous Groves, - Our attention been directed, writes the Medical Press and Junings of a whole people, that it been directed, writes the Medical Frest and is impossible to read it without a thrill of Circular, by a respected correspondent to a case which he ascribes due to the wearing of gloves dyed with some pois nous substance. His patient, a lady, purchased a box of green ing historical events. The Hebrew religion, apart from its divine inspiration and its worthful reflection of past history, has preeminently this great merit, that, in the absence of political connection, it has bound by indissolable ties the Jewish people in one common raternity, far more effectually, than a mere common origin could have done. "The Civil List." A RHYMS—BY MART TATLOR. You heard of the Permanent Salary Act.

I ou neard of the Permanent Salary Act,
Introduced in your Legislature—
It was a curious bill in fact,
But very true to nature—
For natural 'tis for a salaried man
To use his best endeavor
To wank his salary if the big. Tis natural, too, that one should work, To better his condition, And so the Bill at last was passed

And so the Bill at list was passed
In spite of opposition;
And sixty-three rich officers,
Whose names I will not mention.
Though fairly, squarely, voted out—
Will all receive their pension.
The arguments against the Bill
Were really very able.
And formed a chain as long and strong
As the Atlantic Cubic.
The majority was overruled.
Which hardly seems a fair go—
Unless it is upon the plan
That money makes the more go.

Some few, who in the public weal
Seem truly interested.
Against its being made a law of the
Most extrestly protested;
But those in power seemed to think.
Twould make us more like brothers
To have the class who didn't work
Supported by the others.

Tis aborthought, and this idea [ ] To keep things straight that sixty-three Dust every bee-hive have its drones.

To cut up half the honey?

And don't you think—now "honor bright." To have some men of tellure: And gon't your sally thank withour. That fifty of the number ould earn their money just as well To pass their thus in slumber. If doctors cannot cure your ills—

And you've no power to these them.
The policy to buy their pills
Although you pever take them;
And when you find your public men
Are ever mischief brewing.

Pay them and lay them on the theif
And save your land from ruin.

And save your land from rain.

Last night 'twas painful to behold
So large a crowd assemble,
And when the people's champion spoke,
Your officers you know have been
For getting—ant forgiving;
How hard 'twould be for sixty-three
To have to work for living.

To have to work for average.

I've worked for salary many a day,
Now these are truths I utter,
And scarcely have I saved enough.
To buy my bread and butter—
Why can they not extend the law
And prove our benefactore
And when we have to leave the stage.

Vote salaries for the actors.

How nice 'twould be for Tony Ward
Priend Beatty, too, and Barney—
To have a dash at Public Cash
Without a word of blarney—
Should Feenre my madden must.
Or should her courage fail her,
How nice 'twould be to have you work,
To raise a dash for Taylor'
